Affordable innovation can help transform the health, education, and quality of life of the billions of people across the planet. This is essential for the peace and prosperity of mankind. The intersections of today’s life and location-independent digital technologies offer us a unique opportunity to leverage global knowledge to find solutions much quicker and cheaper than we could ever imagine.

Professor Muhammad Yunus, 2006 Nobel Peace Laureate, will lead a global conference on Health, Technology, and Education in Atlanta, GA, USA on May 10-13, 2015. This Global Summit will focus on innovative solutions, access, and advocacy in collaboration with many individuals, organizations, academic and research institutions, foundations, corporations, and NGOs. Outcomes from conference will roll into an action-oriented Nobel Peace Laureates Summit later that year.

This special event will bring together practitioners, thinkers, key opinion leaders, planners, academics, technology experts, and top executives of health, technology, and education arena. The Global Summit also encourages entrepreneurs, investors, and foundation executives to attend. It will have parallel and joint discussions on innovative applications of technology in healthcare and education, especially those intended to make them universal and affordable. The goal is to discover new ideas that can be translated into sustainable social and other businesses.

Best possible solutions identified from the conference will be implemented under the leadership of Professor Yunus in Bangladesh or in any other country. Grameen companies in Bangladesh will provide part of the investments, manpower, land and other needed local facilities. Under the leadership of Professor Yunus, Grameen social businesses in Bangladesh have experience in providing health care, nutrition for children, clean and safe water in the villages, mosquito nets for protection against malaria, vocational training, education, application of technology for reaching out to the underserved population, in an affordable way.

We extend a special invitation to you to join us in Atlanta and to recommend other experts or industry/opinion leaders in the health, technology, and education spaces. We look forward to your active participation.

Prof. Muhammad Yunus
2006 Nobel Peace Laureate
Chairman, Yunus Center
Chairman, Yunus Creative Lab, Inc.

Dr. Mohammad Bhuiyan
CEO, Atlanta Nobel Summit Organization
President & CEO, Yunus Creative Lab, Inc.
MAJOR FOCUS AREAS

BE A PART OF THE SOLUTION:
AN INVITATION TO SHOWCASE YOUR SOLUTION

This Global Summit event is solution oriented. We would like to invite businesses, start-ups, engineers and researchers to present their sustainable solutions as part of our Innovation Showcase.

We invite participants to submit requests to share business or research concepts that lead to sustainable and humanitarian health care and education solutions, through presentations, posters or exhibits.

At the Global Summit, a panel from industry, academia, and humanitarian sectors will curate presentations sessions and review posters and exhibits on innovative solutions and business ventures that lead to affordable solutions for urgent social and human problems.

Innovative solutions selected by the panel will be showcased in the closing plenary session. These innovators will gain the attention of the global and national leadership from Foundations, NGO’s, Venture Community, Industry and Academia, and will be invited to present at the November World Summit hosted by Nobel Laureate Prof. Muhammad Yunus.

The best possible solutions identified from the Summit will be invited to implement their solutions under the leadership of Professor Yunus in Bangladesh, or other relevant countries. Grameen companies in Bangladesh will provide part of the investments, manpower, land and other needed local facilities for such trials.
