IntraHealth is a North Carolina-based non-profit organization that has served the public health needs of developing countries for more than 35 years. IntraHealth's mission is to empower health workers to better serve communities in need around the world. We foster local solutions to health care challenges by improving health worker performance, strengthening health systems, harnessing technology, and leveraging partnerships. (<http://www.intrahealth.org>)

The Gillings Global Gateway[®] at the UNC Gillings School of Global Public Health is the organizing unit for global health activities at the School. Program Coordinator, Naya Villarreal, is the contact for the Fellows Program. The Gillings Global Gateway coordinates interdisciplinary global health research, teaching, and practice across all departments and programs in the School. Our goals include: Increase the School's funding opportunities for global health-oriented teaching, research and practice; Enhance cooperative partnerships with individuals and institutions across UNC, North Carolina, the U.S., and other countries around the world; Increase the emphasis on global health issues in curricula in the School and its departments; Update and maintain information, education, and communication resources about global health activities in the School of Public Health; Provide a visible focal point for global health activities within the School.
