WHAT'S THE FUTURE 2017

HOW ELECTIONS INFLUENCE SCIENCE AND ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

2017 brings a landmark transition of power across the United States and North Carolina, leaving many uncertain about the future. How will 2017 fare for scientific and environmental policies?

The Science Policy Advocacy Group (SPAG) and the Environmental Sciences and Engineering Student Organization (ENVRSO), with the support of the ESE alumni association,will host a panel of experts and a networking event for a discussion on, "What's The Future for 2017: How Elections Influence Science and Environmental Policy."

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 1 • 1:15-5:30 PM

MICHAEL HOOKER RESEARCH CENTER • BLUE CROSS BLUE SHIELD AUDITORIUM

Our Panelists:

KELLY KRYC	DAVID GOLDSTON	JASON WEST	JENNIFER MUNDT
Senior Advisor to the Director, Bureau of Safety and Environmental Enforcement	Director of Government Affairs, Natural Resources Defense Council	Associate Professor, UNC Department of Environmental Sciences and Engineering	Senior Legislative Analyst, North Carolina General Assembly

1:15–3:00 pm: Panel talks by experts (with coffee & cookies)
3:00–4:00 pm: Breakout sessions with experts
4:00–5:30 pm: Networking Event with heavy hors d'oeuvres (Vimala's Curryblossom Cafe)
(Networking event co-sponsored by ESE Chapter of the Gillings School of Global Public Health Alumni Association)

UNC GILLINGS SCHOOL OF GLOBAL PUBLIC HEALTH ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCES AND ENGINEERING ENVRSO

UNC GILLINGS SCHOOL OF GLOBAL PUBLIC HEALTH

SPAG

TIBBS UNC | Training Initiatives in Biomedical & Biological Sciences

GPSF GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL STUDENT FEDERATION