Spring 2017 Evening Seminars

This is a continuation of the fall series. While the focus of the fall evening seminars was about the MPH itself, the spring session of evening seminars focuses mainly on career planning and career skills development.

Jan 19: Mini-Methods Symposium

We will first discuss IRB application procedures. Then we will review survey development methods as well as “small N research.”

Feb 9: Pathway to an Academic Career

Dr. Viera will use his own story to discuss pathways to academic medicine and show that there is no single path, but that careers can evolve and develop in many different ways.

Mar 9: Brief Oral Presentation Pointers, tips on publishing, followed by master’s paper groups

We will talk about what makes a great oral presentation – with or without slides. Then, we will discuss the ins and outs of submitting a paper for publication. We will conclude with small group meetings to update and discuss next master’s paper steps.

Mar 30: Oral presentations part 1

Five students will present their work. Presenters will receive feedback on strengths of their presentations and ways to improve.

Apr 20: Oral Presentations part 2

Five students will present their work. Presenters will receive feedback on strengths of their presentations and ways to improve.
