RESEARCH GRANTS AND CONTRACTS

During my time working for private non-profit agencies, I was often called on to participate in proposal writing activities in various capacities, included proposal team leader, proposal design team member, primary and secondary writer, and reviewer. Over the last three decades I have contributed to the development of over 75 grant applications of various sizes to both public and private donors. The trend over time has been for increasing my engagement in proposal writing activities. It should be noted that in this fund-raising environment, contribution to proposal development does not always imply an implementation role if an award is made.

Prior to joining UNC, the major funded proposals I have contributed to include: the Women's Studies project ($8.6 million); the AIDSTECH cooperative agreement ($40 million); the Contraceptive Technology & Family Planning Research cooperative agreement ($167 million); The YouthNet cooperative agreement ($85 million); the Contraceptive and Reproductive Health Technologies and Research Utilization (CRTU) cooperative agreement ($175 million); and the PROGRESS cooperative agreement ($50 million). Each of these awards subsequently provided support for my role as a research and/or research utilization implementer.

Since 2010, MEASURE Evaluation Phase III Leader Award GHA-A-00-08-00003-00 has provided full support for my position as a member of the senior management team. MEASURE Evaluation is a large USAID-funded cooperative agreement, led by the UNC Carolina Population Center and dedicated to improving program monitoring and evaluation research in developing countries.
