Global Climate Change: Implications for U.S. National Security

BRIGADIER GENERAL STEPHEN A. CHENEY, USMC (RET.)

Brigadier General Stephen A. Cheney, USMC (Ret.) is Chief Executive Officer of the American Security Project. He is a former Marine who was closely involved in several Department of Defense reports on climate change. He has appeared widely discussing climate change, including on CNN, Fox, BBC, and NPR, and was recognized by The Weather Channel as a member of the Climate 25 for his leadership in identifying climate change as a national and global security issue. He previously served as Deputy Executive Secretary to Defense Secretaries Cheney and Aspin.

Friday, April 12
11:30AM–1:00PM
133 Rosenau Hall
Lunch will be provided following the event