

UNC Department of Epidemiology

Principles of Epidemiology for Public Health

Classroom Course Information

Course Instructors	Lead Instructor: Karin Yeatts, PhD Co-Instructor: Lorraine Alexander, DrPH
Contact	Karin_Yeatts@unc.edu Lorraine_Alexander@unc.edu
Course Materials	Required textbook: Essentials of Epidemiology in Public Health , 3 rd edition 2013 Ann Aschengrau and George R. Seage. Optional textbook: Epidemiology An Introduction , 2 nd edition, 2012 Kenneth J. Rothman All other materials are on Sakai course site.
Course Offerings:	Fall and Spring semester: One lecture and one lab hour per week. Lectures 3:30-4:45pm Tues, Rosenau Auditorium (RO 133) Labs 3:35-5:25pm Wed or 4:00-5:50pm Thu rooms TBA

About the course: This course will apply epidemiologic concepts to examples across disciplines of public health (environmental health, health behavior, health policy, maternal and child health). The course will incorporate principles of active learning, with team based activities and case studies based on current public health issues.

Overall Course Learning Objectives: (under construction)

Sample Schedule: (under construction)