

Climate Change: What Now?

Carolina Science Café featuring Dr. Jason West

When: Wednesday, January 4, 2017 at 6-7pm

Where: Back Bar at Top of the Hill Restaurant

On Wednesday, January 4, we're kicking off the new year with a discussion of global climate change and how we might address this difficult issue. Dr. Jason West of UNC's Department of Environmental Sciences and Engineering will update us on what we now know and where scientists are heading to learn more. We'll discuss international negotiations, global energy and reasons for hope. With a new year and a new administration heading to the White House, there's lots to discuss!

Free appetizers while supplies last courtesy of the UNC-CH chapter of Sigma Xi.

This Carolina Science Café is co-sponsored by Morehead Planetarium and Science Center, the UNC Center for Environmental Health and Susceptibility, and the UNC chapter of Sigma Xi. For more information, contact Megan Rodgers at merodgers@unc.edu or Jonathan Frederick at jfred@email.unc.edu.