

Environmental Justice Scholars

Funded through F.I.R.E. Summer Internship
Folt Internship Researching Environmental Health

10-week multi-disciplinary summer internship open to undergraduate students interested in contributing to local and global public health outcomes through solution-oriented environmental health research

- Toxicology • Epidemiology • Environmental Health • Cancer • Nutrition
- Data Science • Maternal/Fetal Health • Respiratory Health • & more!

Students will be paired with mentors to develop critical research skills and participate in hypothesis-driven research

- Hands-on laboratory training on toxicological and molecular biological methods
- Introduction to data analysis
- Gain familiarly with various databases and softwares
- Develop critical scientific reading and writing skills
- Create and test hypotheses

Other benefits from participating in F.I.R.E.:

- Gain long-term mentors
- Network among accomplished scientists through conferences and collaborations
- Present research and make impactful contributions to the scientific community
- Opportunities for continued research in upcoming semesters

Dates: May 25th 2021 - August 6th 2021

Apply Here: https://unc.az1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_5uMTdLmOswfLUDY